

The spaghetti hunt by carlos Once Upon a time there were game characters named henry mario luigi and boris. Henry is like the serious one, luigi is afraid of everything mario is adventurous boris is the playful and energetic and calm one. they were in a game called the spaghetti hunt. Their job was to get as much spaghetti as possible if they get the right amount they get to go stage two or they can upgrade their weapons or buy armor, and new weapons so the friends were still on level one but they need spaghetti so they were on the map called acorn plains they needed to find some spaghetti so they split up. They found powerups they all got power ups they got super speed and extra life they saved it. They almost got all the spaghetti but they need one more and they need to fight for that one, they got their weapons out they got their weapons out but suddenly..... a black hole appeared things were falling apart they had nowhere to go is the portal. Hury or we will die we need to take cover said luigi to the black hole..... But what they didn't know the game was going to die (but they also get to go to the world 2) and the only way to save their game is by all of them to be happy and care for each other forever where are we said mario i don't know i think we're in a different world ho ok. Said henry (world rock candy mines) wait! boris and luigi or not here they look but they didn't find them .
